The birth of creative philanthropy

The Foundling Museum is the only cultural institution in the UK to celebrate people who have been in care, and those who care for them. Our work grows from our unique foundations, as the only foundling hospital museum in the world that has an art collection donated by artists, and the only one to tell the story of the birth of creative philanthropy.

We show how artists championed the 18th-century Foundling Hospital cause, including painter William Hogarth and composer George Frideric Handel. Their compassion and generosity demonstrated that the arts can transform lives. At the heart of our work is our award-winning arts training programme for young care leavers, along with arts and wellbeing activities for children, families and communities.

Our corporate members enable our vital mission to happen.
